

PIFIS

University: Eötvös Loránd University

Program: MA in Communication and Media Studies

Preparatory Price: 5500€ in total

Entry requirements to preparatory program: English level: min. A1,
Average high school grades

MA Description: The master's degree prepares you for a high-level of intellectual activity and scientific careers. For those who want to work after completing their training, the media and communications industry offers a wide range of employment opportunities. The training also prepares you to continue your studies at the doctoral level.

Those who choose the specialization in communication and media studies will become professionals with a thorough social science background, who will orient themselves in the medialization processes that can be considered a crucial issue of contemporary social phenomena, research and teach them independently as lecturers or researchers.

The communication and media specialist specialization trains professionals with a social and humanities background and practical skills who work in various fields of the contemporary media and communication industry as leaders, editors, programmers, international project managers, communication experts, media consultants, specialist journalists.

This program is recommended to applicants who are interested in the social sciences, contemporary public life, society and culture, and the social and cultural role of the media and new technologies. Those who like to write and read a lot, who like to participate in teamwork, make their own productions.

Entry requirements to MA program: Minimum level of language proficiency (A1-C2): C1
BA/BSc degree form a relevant field
CV and Motivation Letter
Passing the oral entrance exam
Research work plan