MSc Description: Public Policy and Management at Corvinus is an internationally recognised, interest-based tailored programme for future leading politicians, public policy analysts and civil society leaders. You will hone essential analytical and leadership skills applicable to the public sector, consulting firms, ministries, policy institutes and NGOs (non-governmental organisations).

Public Policy and Management will equip you with a practical toolkit to analyse complex social-public policy issues and evaluate alternative solutions. You will master the concepts, theories, processes, and characteristics of economic science - including microeconomic and macroeconomic planning and organisation. You will gain a deeper understanding of corporate structures, operations and domestic and international relationships of organisations - applicable to all sectors, worldwide!

They accept students from a range of academic and professional backgrounds for admission onto the Public Policy and Management programme. However, the programme blends mathematics and social sciences - so you will need to be an academic all-rounder. An economics background would give you strong foundations for this programme!

Entry requirements to MSc program: Min. 785 points on the final TOEIC exam
Passing the oral entrance exams
BSc/BA diploma from a relevant field
